The Great Fire in Quebec.

The following are all the particulars we have yet been able to find of the great fire in Quebec:

QUEBEC, Monday, October 15th, 1866.—At four o'clock yesterday morning, a fire began in the house of Mr. Trudel, grocer, on St. Joseph street, near the Jacques Cartier market. Owing to the early hour of the morning few people were about. The wind, which had blown half a gale from the east all night, had slightly abated, but still continued with such violence as to cause serious apprehensions, which were afterwards unfortunately realized.

By the time the fire brigade reached the scene Trudel's house was enveloped in flames. The sappers were already there, but there was some delay in laying the hose and getting sufficient water, which was not remedied for nearly an hour. Meantime the fire made rapid progress; no less than ten or twelve houses were on fire, and the lumber and wooden sheds on all sides were ignited. By half past five o'clock eighty houses, all built of wood, were in a blaze. The flames, driven by the wind, were spreading in all directions. At half past six o'clock over 150 houses were consumed.

The fire by this time had run along St. Joseph and Notre Dame des Anges streets to the junction of St. Valier street, carrying everything before it. The church of La Congregation stood in great danger, but a sudden veering of the wind saved it. Crossing St. Valier street, the fire soon afterward spread into St. Sauvor, and among its hundreds of wooden houses raged with defiant fury. House after house fell a prey to the flames. It was thought that the houses to the eastward would be saved, but the fire crept back, continuing its work of destruction.

At 11 o'clock the whole center of the district lying between St. Savour and the lower streets running parallel with the river was a charred and barren waste, and having nothing to feed on there, the conflagration distributed itself in opposite directions, the wind increasing again, and blowing gusts from every direction. Three separate conflagrations were observable at one time. St. Sauvour Church, Dunn's soap and candle factory, Rice's rope walk and other large buildings were in flames.

Along St. Valier street, and the toll-gate, and the streets surrounding the General Hospital and Convent, another terrible fire was raging with even greater fury, while at the back of Crown street, along Prince Edward's, Jesuit and Bilard streets, the flames were creeping back and enveloping street after street in spite of the almost superhuman exertions of the soldiers and the seamen of the Aurora. The conflagration ceased at about five o'clock, when there was nothing more for it to feed on. A moderate computation places the number of houses destroyed at 2,500 and the loss of real property at from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. The number of persons rendered homeless is estimated at 18,000.

The body of a man, burned almost to a crisp, was dragged out of a house in St. Sauvour, near St. Valier street. It could not be identified. Sergeant Hughes of the Royal Artillery was blown up, and badly, though not dangerously burned. Lieutenant Douglas, of the Aurora, was severely hurt by a falling building. Several of the seamen received contusions, but so far as known, no one was seriously injured. Lieut. Benn, of one of the regiments, had his arm broken by a falling beam.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

QUEBEC, Oct. 16, 1866.—The Mayor of Quebec issued a proclamation yesterday morning for a mass meeting to be held last evening to devise means to assist the sufferers by the great fire. A more numerous and influential assembly never convened in this city. The citizens whose property escaped injury are doing everything in their power to provide relief for those who have been rendered houseless and penniless by the greatest fire that has ever occurred in America. The sufferings at Portland cannot be compared to those endured at Quebec. The people in the province have no one to rely on. The inhabitants of Lower Canada, being poor, cannot assist the sufferers as they would wish.

A committee was appointed who will immediately appeal to the charitably disposed persons throughout the continent for funds to help rebuild the city and provide homes for the poor, and before the approaching winter sets in. Fifteen thousand dollars was subscribed at the meeting last night, and about five thousand dollars during the day.

Coroner Prendergrast held an inquest on the four bodies taken from the ruins. The first body taken out was that of a woman named Margaret Weard—the wife of Jean Baptiste, of St. Larcarcer—whose husband was killed by the explosion in Arago street.

The remains of three women were discovered after a search of six hours, buried beneath the ruins of an old brick building, near the lower end of Arago street. Their names were Angelia Vadebeoour, aged thirty-six years; Angelique Vadebeour, aged sixty years; the name of the third has not yet transpired. The mother of the Vadebeours was taken from beneath a mass of rubbish in such a state as to be unrecognizable.

A clerk in the grocery store of Mr. Ganeroux, named Biscoulier, is missing. Several other persons are also reported missing.

The number of houses destroyed is greater than at first supposed. I think they will number 2350, throwing over 25,000 persons on the charity of the world.

On St. Lauvre and Stone streets, out of 2000 only 175 were left standing. The families living in those were all of the poorest class, and very few of them saved from the flames any clothing except what was on their persons.

Out of the large number of houses that were situated in the suburbs of the city the only token left was a wilderness of chimneys and ruins of what was the most popular resort during the summer months.

The different societies of the city have placed at the disposal of the authorities their halls for the families who were unable to procure tents. The skating ground, City Hall, two drill sheds, and the Marine Hospital are filled.

The Governor General, immediately after being notified of the sad catastrophe, ordered ten thousand tents to be taken to Quebec for the accommodation of the houseless sufferers.

In the Sisters of Charity Hospital are two hundred and fifty persons under their charge. The Sisters have been among the poor, houseless creatures, furnishing food and clothes, and administering to the wounded.

The telegraph poles of the Montreal Company were burned down for over a mile.

The weather during the day is very pleasant, but at night the air is very chilly. Those living in tents complain bitterly of the cold.

A mass meeting is to be held in Montreal tomorrow night to raise subscriptions for the sufferers.

SNOW IN MONTANA.—The Post of the 20th October says:

A snow storm commenced on the morning of the 13th inst., and still continues. There have been occasional lulls, and the effect thus far have been unimportant in this neighborhood. Upon the mountains, the roads have been filled with the congealed rain of winter, and the coaches upon all the lines that run to Virginia City, were behind time about forty-four hours. We have been informed that the snow on the Prickly Pear divide was four feet deep; on the Black Tail Deer divide, upon the route to Great Salt Lake, it was two and a half feet in depth. The interruption of our mail facilities for a few hours, makes our impatient and enterprising citizens wish that the telegraphic line was completed, so that we can learn the latest news from America and Europe.

"HARK FROM THE TOMBS."—The New York Times, whose editor was the working man of the Philadelphia Convention, now chants a requiem over its lifeless corpse. He says:

There is no national Union organization in the field; there are no candidates representing the national Union movement. The Philadelphia Convention has disappeared from the contest. Not only has it no organized representation—no party of its own—in the canvass, but it has failed to affect to any great extent the action of either of the other parties, in their nominations or of the principles and measures which they support,

Two negro hearse drivers met in the streets of Nashville, when one accosted the other with the remark, "Well, Jim, how's biz to-day?" The reply was, "Golly, Jack, ain't we slingin' 'em."

How the Oregon Territory was Saved to the United States.

We presume it is not generally known to our citizens on the Pacific coast, nor to many people in the Atlantic States, how near we came to losing, through executive incompetence, our just title to the whole immense region lying west of the Rocky Mountains. Neither has due honor been accorded to the brave and patriotic man through whose herculean exertions this great loss and sacrifice was prevented.

The facts were briefly and freshly brought out during the recent meeting at Pittsburg of the "American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions," in the course of an elaborate paper, read by Mr. Trent, one of the secretaries of the Board, on the "Incidental Results of Missions."

In the year 1836 the American Board undertook to establish a mission among the Indians beyond the Rocky Mountains. Two missionaries, Rev. Mr. Spaulding and Dr. Whitman, with their wives—the first white women who had ever made that perilous journey—passed over the mountains with incredible toil, to reach Oregon, the field of their labor. After remaining there for a few years, Dr. Whitman began to understand the object of the misrepresentations of the Hudson Bay Company. He saw, contrary to the reiterated public statements of that company:

1. That the land was rich in minerals.
2. That emigrants could cross the Rocky Mountains in wagons, a feat which they had constantly asserted to be impossible.
3. That the Hudson's Bay Company was planning to secure the sole occupancy of the whole of that country, by obtaining a surrender of the American title into the hands of the British Government.

Seeing these things but not knowing how very near the British scheme was to its accomplishment, Dr. Whitman resolved, at every hazard, to prevent its consummation. He undertook, in 1842, to make a journey on horseback to Washington, to lay the whole matter clearly before our Government by personal representations. Being a man of great physical strength and an iron constitution, he accomplished the long and perilous journey, and reached Washington in safety. The remainder of the story we will relate in the language of the Boston Congregationalist: "Reaching Washington, he sought an interview with President Tyler and Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, and unfolded to them distinctly what was going on. Here he learned that a treaty was almost ready to be signed, in which all this northwestern territory was to be given up to England, and we were to have in compensation greater facilities in catching fish. Dr. Whitman labored to convince Mr. Webster that he was the victim of false representations with regard to the character of the region, and told him that he intended to return to Oregon with a train of emigrants. Mr. Webster, looking him full in the eye, asked him if he would pledge himself to conduct a train of emigrants there in wagons. He promised that he would. Then, said Mr. Webster, this treaty shall be suppressed. Dr. Whitman, in coming on, had fixed upon certain rallying points where emigrants might assemble to accompany him on his return. He found nearly 1,000 ready for the journey. After long travel, they reached Fort Hall, a British military station, and the commandant undertook to frighten the emigrants by telling them that it was not possible for them to go through with wagons; but Dr. Whitman reassured them, and led them through to the Columbia, and the days of the supremacy of the Hudson's Bay Company over Oregon were numbered.—N. Y. Evening Post.

DEATH OF JOHN VAN BUREN—PARTICULARS.—The New York Commercial says of the death of Mr. Van Buren: He was returning from a tour in Scotland, whither he has been for the benefit of his health, which, for some time past had been visibly declining. During the tour, he caught a severe cold, which caused inflammation of the kidneys, and when he came on board the Scotia, he was very ill; he at once retired to his state-room, where he remained, until Wednesday morning, when he got up and walked about the deck, contrary to the advice of his medical attendant.

Returning to his state-room, Mr. Van Buren was seized with acute inflammation of the kidneys, and his sufferings were intense. During this time he talked incessantly, but incoherently, chiefly on political affairs. On Saturday morning he commenced to sink visibly, and his daughter and neice, with Capt. Wilkins of the Scotia, were summoned to his state-room. They, with Drs. Brice and Crane, remained with him nearly the whole day, and at about 11 o'clock P. M., when the vessel was off Cape Race, Mr. Van Buren expired. A coffin was at once made for the body, and it was placed in one of the ship's boats, where it now remains.

King William of Prussia, although he has reached his "three score years and ten," is still energetic and active; yet there is observed in Germany a constant tendency to worship the rising son, the Crown Prince. English observers regard it as a favorable omen that the Crown Prince keeps up the most affectionate relations with his mother-in-law, the British Queen.

Demagogical Practises.

The ambitious man always makes professions of devotion to the people. He often takes pride in making himself appear as an humble individual and in impressing beholders with the belief that he utterly despises the powers, rewards and dignities of office. When he is working in the darkest mines of deceit and faction, when he is employing every secret artifice and using every corrupt means within his reach to compass his ends, then it is that he makes a parade of the integrity of his intentions and boasts of his ingenuousness, of his plainness, and of his freedom from dissimulation. The trickery of such a course is easily to be detected, for every demagogue from the beginning of political society down to the great "I" of our time, has practised the same arts and discovered to the world his real character by the use of the very same shallow devices for his own aggrandizement.

A favorite habit with him is to disclaim all regard for dignity, and to affect a directness of speech and a plainness of manner which are as far removed from true decorum as haughtiness is from true elevation of mind. All recollect the spectacle which was presented only a little time ago, when the highest officer in the land was making a tour through the country, in which it seemed to be his study and delight to show how undignified a President could be. Shakspeare describes this sort of man. He makes Cornwall say of Kent, who, in a most finical manner, had remarked that his "occupation was to be plain:"

> This is some fellow,
> Who, having been praised for bluntness, doth affect
> A saucy roughness; and constrains the garb,
> Quite from his nature; He cannot flatter, he!—
> An honest mind and plain,—he must speak truth:
> And they will take it so; if not, he's plain.
> These kind of knaves I know, which in this plainness
> Harbor more craft, and more corrupter ends,
> These twenty silly ducking observants,
> That stretch their duties nicely.

In commenting on the remark that the President had not been treated with the respect due to his high station, a New York literary paper says:

"Much as some men dislike the opinions of which the late President was the exponent, ready as many were to satyrize his person or to express contempt for his homely manners, there were few who could have had the heart to stand in the Illinois rail-splitter's honest presence and say such things as have been said to Andrew Johnson during the last ten days. So true is it that he who respects himself and respects his station must needs be respected of men, whether they agree with him or not. "I care nothing for dignity!" exclaimed the President. The eighteenth President of the United States care nothing for dignity! Can we wonder that the rabble, wherever he goes, should take him at his word?"

A Copperhead paper near us is much offended, and even much scandalized by these remarks. It looks to another cause for a reason why Mr. Lincoln was listened to with respect, while Mr. Johnson has sometimes met the fleers and gibes and disrespectful treatment of the multitude. "Mr. Lincoln's sentiments and sympathies," quoth this discerning critic, "were with the ruffians and blackguards, while Mr. Johnson's were not. Certainly no gentleman or decent man ever insulted the President, and as certainly Mr. Johnson was not publicly assailed and insulted until he became obnoxious to the Radicals." To show whether Mr. Lincoln's or Mr. Johnson's sentiments and sympathies were with ruffians and blackguards, it would be useful to compare their speeches, and note the difference between them. Did Mr. Lincoln ever indulge in violent denunciation of his opponents? No. Did Mr. Johnson? Yes. Did Mr. Lincoln ever resort to low abuse to put down those who opposed him? No. Did Mr. Johnson? Yes. Did Mr. Lincoln ever employ the language of gross personality, of passionate invective, or of bitter blasphemy against such as chose to differ with him? No. Did Mr. Johnson? Yes. Did Mr. Lincoln ever become heated with wine, and while in this state disgrace both himself and his office with his immodesty of speech? No. Did Mr. Johnson? Yes. Whose sentiments then, were those of the blackguard, and whose those of the true gentleman and dignified statesman?

Let us grant the truth of the other statement of this Copperhead organ: "Certainly no gentleman or decent man ever insulted the President"—and what a character does it give the Democratic party! By this rule there is not a gentleman or a decent person among all its journalists, its orators, its public men. Not a Copperhead paper in the United States which did not heap the foulest abuse on Mr. Lincoln during his whole term. Not a Democratic orator who did not assail him with all his powers of vituperation. And now that he is dead, there is at least one Copperhead editor who continues to revile his memory by saying that his sentiments and sympathies were those of a ruffian and blackguard. Yet this fellow lays claim to decency for himself and party. It is no wonder that he thinks Andrew Johnson an upright, dignified and noble man.

So far is it from being true that "Mr. Johnson was not publicly assailed and insulted until he became obnoxious to the Radicals,"—it is a notorious fact that he has never been assailed by them with half the scurrility with which he was attacked by the Democratic press before he apostasized from the Union party. The Union press may be searched in vain for language approaching in vileness to that which was applied to Mr. Johnson when he was a candidate for office, and when he was inaugurated Vice President. The Radicals, great reason as they have to dislike him, have never vilified him to the extent which those have done who are now his friends.

Mr. Johnson tried to play the demagogue and failed. His tricks were too transparent to deceive anybody. Such pitiful arts never succeeded with an intelligent people. They saw ambition in his plainness, craft in his flatteries, selfishness in his liberal promises. No wonder he has failed.

THE "FORTY THIEVES'" ARITHMETIC.—The doltish dotard and senile simpleton of the Herald has abandoned his character as "teacher" of Democracy, and ambitiously undertakes to teach arithmetic. His first effort in this line is to show that Massachusetts, a State which threw 175,487 votes in 1864, (see Tribune Almanac) and which has ten Representatives in Congress, has therefore one Representative to each 14,061 votes, and that California, a State which in 1864 threw 105,795 votes, and which has three Representatives in Congress, has therefore one Representative to each 59,420 votes. In other words, the quotient of ten into 175,487 is 14,061, and the quotient of three into 105,705 is 59,420. Arithmetical calculations of this sort were no doubt relied on by that celebrated association known as the "Forty Wisconsin Thieves;" but the system has never been adopted here—not even in the "rural academies" of which the teacher of the "Forty Thieves'" arithmetic speaks so disparagingly. The professor of this system of arithmetic, if he is anxious to succeed in his efforts to have it brought into general use, had better go to some place where the public mind is not already prepossessed in favor of the old system which teaches that two and two make four.

A Washington despatch of October 9th, says that the President, the day before the Pennsylvania election, expressed the utmost confidence that his policy would be sustained in that State! The Bulletin's editorial correspondence states that when the result was announced the President was utterly astounded.

IDAHO POSTOFFICES.—Boise City, Ruby City and Idaho City have been designated as money-order postoffices.

Oil was selling in Pennsylvania at four dollars a barrel on the 4th of October.

FROM IDAHO.

We clip the following from the Idaho City Times of the 6th:

FORCIBLE EJECTMENT.

A miner by the name of Lynch lately purchased a claim near Last Chance Bar, below Idaho City, at Sheriff's sale. He enjoyed peaceable possession until yesterday, when one McCullough appeared with a shot-gun and compelled Lynch to surrender. Mc. was bound over before A. P. Turner, J. P., to show cause before the next Grand Jury.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A Centerville correspondent says: This evening, Nov. 1st, between the hours of five and six, one John Peter Von Darmon, a native of Rotterdam, Holland, cut his throat from ear to ear, leaving a most dreadful gash. The unfortunate man committed the deed while under the influence of liquor. He was a hard drinker, and for some time past had adopted the name of "Calamity." At the present hour (9 o'clock) he is still living and receiving the kind treatment of Dr. Stephens, who entertains but little hope of his recovery.

LECTURING ON MORMONISM.

Rev. Mr. Roberts delivered a lecture at the court-house on Sunday evening last, on the subject of Mormonism. It was very interesting and largely attended by the ladies and gentlemen of Idaho and vicinity. Mr. Roberts lately returned from a lengthy visit to Salt Lake, where he has had a good opportunity to inform himself with regard to the usages of this heathen community; information received from their chiefs in the Tabernacle and Gentiles of long residence in Utah.

INJURED.

We learn from Mr. Walker that during the storm on Sunday evening a tree was fallen across the Boise City road, on this side of the summit. A team standing in the immediate vicinity became unmanageable by their driver, named John McNitt, who was thrown against a stump and severely injured. He was taken to Boise City.

CENTERVILLE ITEMS.

Mining here is very brisk. Among the fortunate celestials there is a company bearing the name of Ah Hoo, who made up the neat little sum of $1,800—one week's cleaning for twelve men.

A Chinese cabin was robbed this evening of its contents. Among the stolen articles were two revolvers and some clothing.

A STORM.

Quite a storm visited Idaho on last Sunday afternoon. The damage was slight. This is the first of any magnitude since July, 1864.

The following is from the Times of the 9th:

THE SPENCE HOMICIDE.

John O'Donnell who accidently shot a man by the name of Spence, at Pioneer City, came to Idaho City on Tuesday last and demanded a hearing before Justice McGowd, notwithstanding the Coroner's jury had returned a verdict of accidental killing. The evidence before the Coroner's jury, with the additional evidence of five witnesses, was heard by his honor, who discharged the accused.

ROBBERY OF A PACKER.

On Wednesday morning, at about 9 o'clock A. M., while Ben. F. Flathers, a packer, was on his way from Rocky Bar, Alturas County, to Idaho City, he was confronted by two men disguised with covered faces and long gum coats, who demanded his money, using forcible argument with a shot gun and a revolver. Mr. F. of course acceded to their demands, passing over one purse containing forty-five ounces of dust and another containing a few ounces of sand and several quartz specimens. After receiving the dust they took a blanket, carried by him for his own convenience. He remarked to them that he was sick, and considered it rather hard treatment, whereupon they answered, "Go on, you d—d son of a b—h, you have time to make another trip this season," as much as to say they only wanted an equal interest with him in his packing enterprise. Mr. F. describes one of the men to be a heavy set and the other a rather tall, slim man. The affair took place on the Lake Trail, about eighteen miles from this city.

The Statesman of the 8th and 10th has the following:

RUMORED INDIAN RAID.

There is rumor of another Indian raid in Flint, occurring last Wednesday. Mr. Miller, who came over from Owyhee on the last stage, was told at Reynolds' creek by Mr. Sennings, that all the horses and cattle were driven off from Flint. The report will be confirmed or contradicted by stage to-night.

APPOINTMENT OF AN UNDER SHERIFF.

Captain Ralph Bledsoe has been appointed Deputy by Sheriff Duvall in place of Wm. Yates, resigned. The Captain has an enviable reputation for fearlessness and impartiality, and we have no doubt but his appointment will give general satisfaction.

CALIFORNIA STATE ITEMS.

Governor Low has issued a proclamation appointing Thursday, 29th of November, a day of thanksgiving and praise.

The Ledger names 27 grape-growers in Amador who will make an aggregate of 30,000 gallons of wine the present season.

The Colusa wool-growers are taking steps to build a woolen mill at that place. The Independent calls for another at Red Bluff, and says that there are thirty men in Tehama county who produce from $2,000 to $3,000 worth of wool yearly.

About fifty new money-order offices have been opened in different parts of the State. The amount of funds passing through the hands of the postmaster of San Francisco from the money-order business since the 5th of February last has been upwards of $250,000.

The number of schools in this State has been increased from 947 to 959 for the past year, and the school districts have increased over 70. Some 85 new school houses have been erected during the past year.

The Sacramento Bee, in an article on the condition of the State, says:

The general health is not good. Typhoid fever prevails in Nevada county; in Placer there is much sickness among children; in Sacramento county billious disorders are rife. An improvement is apparent in San Francisco, and the mortality report for the last week shows a decrease of 16 deaths on the week previous.

During the last year there were published in San Francisco, 11 daily papers, 23 weekly, 2 semi-weekly, 1 tri-weekly and 1 tri-monthly. In this statement the weekly and steamer editions of the daily papers are not included. The above journals were printed in the English, French, Spanish, German, Italian and Hebrew languages; and it is announced that in the coming year there will be a journal printed in San Francisco partially in the Chinese tongue.

In San Francisco there are 10 grist mills, 1 salt mill, 1 rice mill, 21 breweries, 2 sugar refineries. They grind 1,500 tons of salt a year; 130 men brew 61,825 barrels of beer; 180 men manufacture 26,000,000 pounds of refined sugar. They have a match factory, two glass factories, a wire rope factory, and a hemp rope factory employing 50 men. They have 13 soap factories, employing 36 men, consuming 750,000 pounds of tallow in making 1,000,000 pounds of soap annually. They have five saw mills, cutting 6,250,000,000 feet of lumber a year; and 38 machine shops and foundries, employing 1,200 men.

STATE ITEMS.

Capt. Kelly, late of the Oregon Volunteer Cavalry, assumed command of Company C, 1st U. S. Cavalry, yesterday, the 15th.

It is reported that Col. Custar and several lieutenant-colonels are on their way to this department to take command of the cavalry regiments now stationed here, and which have not heretofore been fully officered. It is said that one regiment of cavalry has been, with one exception under infantry officers.

We are informed that it has been proposed by prominent citizens of this city and elsewhere in the State, to invite Governor Woods to undertake a trip to the States for the purpose of setting before the people there the inducements for emigrating to Oregon, and that a considerable sum has been subscribed toward defraying the expenses of the trip.

Some persons in Linn county have found a large tract of arable country at the head of the Des Chutes, where it is about the size of a good mill stream, and forty miles south of where the new road through the Santiam mines crosses the Cascades. It is well watered, grass good, but timber scarce. A number of families have formed a company for settlement there next spring.

The following post offices in Oregon have just been designated as money-order offices: Albany, Linn county; Auburn, Baker; Canyon City, Grant; Corvallis, Benton; Dallas, Polk; Eugene City, Lane; Jacksonville, Jackson; Lafayette, Yamhill; La Grande, Union; Roseburg, Douglas; Salem, Marion; Dalles, Wasco; Umatilla, Umatilla; Oregon City, Clackamas. Portland has been a money-order office since the 5th of last February. The offices just designated, will probably not get in practical operation before the 1st of January.

FROM UTAH.

From the Salt Lake Vedette of October 29th, we clip the following:

The investigation of the circumstances of the murder of Dr. Robinson was still in progress.

The case that has been so long pending in our courts entitled Gibray vs. Holladay O. M. & E. Co., was on Saturday decided in favor of the plaintiff, and the jury awarded damages to the amount of $16,623.

A robbery took place at Camp Douglas a few nights since, the thief being a soldier named Johnson. Among the articles pilfered were the Colonel's horse, several of his linen shirts, a number of guns and 5,000 rounds of cartridges.

A large number of the officers and privates of our late armies, survivors of rebel prisons, have formed a society for the purpose of "renewing and perpetuating the friendships which were cemented by mutual suffering, for affording aid to such of their number as have been rendered helpless by rebel barbarity, and of collecting materials for a history of their imprisonment. All survivors of rebel prisons are invited to send their names to the 'Association.'" The reconstructed will probably object to thus keeping alive the memories of the late war and thereby preventing "reconciliation."

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.—The following post-offices in Washington Territory have been selected as money-order offices: Olympia, Vancouver, Steilacoom City and Walla Walla.

At a regular meeting of Samaritan Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., held on the evening of the 14th inst., the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, An All-Wise and inscrutable Providence in His wisdom has removed from the busy scenes of earth, Brother Nelson Ham, who, after an illness of short duration, departed this life on the third instant; and who, in accordance with the usages of the I. O. O. F., we recently consigned to the tomb of the silent dead; again are we reminded of the uncertainty of life and the perishable nature of this earthly mortality; therefore,

Resolved, That as a mark of respect entertained by the members of Samaritan Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., for memory of deceased, the lodge rooms be draped in the usual emblem of mourning for the period of thirty days.

Resolved, That we condole and sympathize with the relations and friends of the deceased brother, in their sorrow and affliction, they having lost a true friend, and the Order an honorable member.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the daily papers of this city, and the New Age, and a copy transmitted to the sorrowing brother of the deceased.

Portland, Oregon, November 14, 1866.

ATTENTION, ALL!—NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP cures all diseases of the chest and lungs; a trial will convince the most sceptical. It is effective and pleasant. Try it, and bless yourselves and the originator.

Board of Delegates.—Special meeting Saturday evening, at 7½ o'clock, precisely.

By order of the President.

BENJ. L. NORDEN, Sec'y P. F. D.

Portland, November 16th, 1866.

GET THE BEST.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 89 First Street, furnish the very best PHOTOGRAPHS, SUN PEARLS, and every other kind of PICTURE know to the art. It is believed that the ancient Druids understood something of fine arts, but it has remained for this establishment to show its real beauties, in fixing the features of the human face. It is not necessary to wait for a clear day.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Within the last few weeks a large number of our citizens have availed themselves of the benefit of a Life Insurance, which certainly is very praiseworthy, but one of those heavy BEAVER SUITS, for sale at the ST. LOUIS CLOTHING STORE, will prolong Life and do away with the necessity of a Life Policy.

What Experienced Mill Men think of the Portable Steam Saw Mills built by the Oregon Iron Works:

PORTLAND, Oct. 13th, 1866.

TO THE OREGON IRON WORKS:

Gentlemen:—The Portable Steam Saw Mill which we purchased of you last spring for Pend'Oreille Lake, has been in operation during the past season, and has more than met our expectations in its performance. With three men, we turn out from three to four thousand feet, and with five men, five thousand feet per day of ten hours; and we take pleasure in recommending these mills as the most SUBSTANTIAL, DESIRABLE AND PERFECT MILLS IN USE, and especially adapted to the wants of this country, on account of their compact form, ease of transportation and the facility with which they can be set up and put in operation. Although subjected to the most severe tests, no repairs have been required.

Resolved, That ... the necessity requiring his ... period, and consequent resignation ... the people of Portland, whom, as ... officer, he has so faithfully served, we ... God speed, with the assurance that he bears ... their best wishes for a safe and prosperous journey ...

Circuit Court ... Judge—Thursday's proceedings, Nov 15th Geo. Eagleston vs. Henry Moln ... defendant for $100 in coin and ... of mortgage. ... Cahn & Co. vs ... and B T Smith. Judgment against ... State vs. Mary and John Collins; ... Collins plead guilty of selling spirits to ... Indians, fined $20 and costs and committed to jail for ... in default of paying the same John Col ... was discharged.—The Grand Jury returned true bills in the following cases and defendants were ... to wit A. G. Church, John Mach and Daniel ... State vs. Louis Andrew an Indian ... with an assault with intent to commit murder ... by jury verdict guilty, as charged, indicted for an assault with intent to kill, being armed with a dangerous weapon.

Wool.—We noticed yesterday upon the wharf a large lot of ... wool, which had been discharged from the steamer ... and is destined for the Oregon City Woolen Mills. It is coarse wool and is intended for ... of blankets. It is an anomaly to see wool shipped to this port from San Francisco, when it is known that we have here a large surplus, and that during last season large quantities were shipped to the California and ... markets This shipment of wool ... caused by the high price of wool here during the past season, and from the fact of the company being able to purchase ... wool in the San Francisco market at low rates.

... —The steamer ... brought last evening from Oregon City the following freight 427 bxs apples, 1,400 qr sks flour, 30 cases lard, 2 gunnies ..., 3 bales ..., 2 bales woolen goods ... and 1 box pears.

Treasure.—The ... of Wells, Fargo & Co, brought last evening from the North $40,000 in treasure.

...—The Wilson G Hunt brought last evening from the Cascades fifty passengers.

U S District Court—Deady Justice.—Thursday Nov 15th 1866 United States vs Pacific motion by claimant to discharge decree against sureties on warrant of remission from Secretary of Treasury. United States vs Orizaba same motion on same facts Question as to amount of District Attorney's fees agreed and submitted Delph for United States Strong for claimant United States vs Wm Wilson indictment for passing two forged checks of the value of $1 600 Jury—C T Myers, W J Robinson J L Barlow Levi Estes, John D Dement W C Hoult W a Graham, H M Hill Geo Hurley Job Campbell L M Burton and J H Bailey After a short trial ... the jury returned verdict guilty and recommended the defendant to the mercy of the Court Ordered the defendant to be brought in for sentence on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

Aid and Comfort.—When a well dressed young man of sober habits is called a brick it must be understood as a figurative expression meaning a "prince among good fellows" We have no hesitation in applying the descriptive appellation—brick, to a Mr ... of the Western Hotel Notwithstanding our personal attack on him yesterday morning on his arrival home, he last evening sent us—by us we mean all hands—a huge basket of lunch, consisting of more chickens, cakes etc than we have room to enumerate and something genial to cheer our spirits withal To a hungry man who is dry we can t think of anything better calculated to give aid and comfort to a tired editor compositor or any any other man than the contents of the basket aforesaid.

Freight by the Falkinberg.—The Jane A Falkinberg takes out to Honolulu the following freight 100 bbls salmon 25 pkgs apple butter 501 sks oats (2,000 bushels), 172 shooks (bdls), 8 kgs heads 106 cords stove wood, 10 bxs apples and lumber amount not ascertainable till the Couch returns to-morrow The Falkinberg will leave Astoria this afternoon

Change of Headquarters.—Gen Steele and staff are soon to establish their headquarters in this city and preparations are said to be already making for the change

The Montana.—The steamship Montana, of the Anchor line, J R. Kelly Commander, will sail this morning from San Francisco for this port direct.

Passengers for Honolulu.—Miss Caldwell and Thomas V Hammonds go out as passengers on the barkentine Jane A Falkinburg, for Honolulu.

When Gen Sherman was asked by a newspaper reporter, his opinion of the Fenian invasion he answered him to go to ——. If anyone asks you where to find the best assortment of Gents and Youths clothing, tell them to go to Barman Bros.

Private Dining Rooms.—Mons. Pierre Mauclot has just superbly fitted up private apartments at the Lafayette Restaurant, for the accommodation of Ladies and Families, or private parties of Ladies and Gentlemen, and is prepared to furnish the delicacies of the season to those desiring Entrance on Stark street, opposite the Willamette Theatre He is also prepared to furnish suppers for parties, balls, &c., on the shortest notice. n12tf

Disaster to the "Evening Star."

FURTHER PARTICULARS—SCENES ON THE VESSEL.

The following description of the scenes on the vessel on the last day we find in the World:

About 6 o'clock on Wednesday, the 2d of October, the wind became very stiff, and sharp from east to southeast, and through the day constantly increased. From the apprehensive appearance and incessant consulting of the officers, and from the tremendous working of the crew, all thought, and rightly, that the danger was not less great than growing greater. The scenes below deck affecting to a degree that challenges description. The wind was fast becoming a gale, the gale a hurricane. The ship reeled from side to side like a drunken man. At times she lay completely on beam-ends in the trough of the sea. Then the screams and cries were appalling. Families gathered in separate groups, and clung in the agony of terror to each other. Trunks were ransacked. Whatever was most prized or need was hastily put together. Some tried to pray. Many of the men showed less courage than the women. They became, some frantic, some maudlin. Here and there were brave hearts and cool heads that would go out and assist if they could, and would send back the most assuring messages possible. Others were belting gold around their waists, which proved only a quicker weighting towards the depths of the sea. Now and then a cross-sea would come which would veer the vessel almost round and, she the while sidewise on her beam-ends. Ere long window after window would be broken through by the waves. The occupants of the cabin would become drenched through and through. Cold, wet, hopeless, hungry, in the darkness beyond the dim flicker of the occasional covered lanterns here and there carried, the confusion was indescribable, the agony terrific, the fright terrible. Every one questioned him or her next what he or she thought. Strangers became friends and co-laborers from the supreme necessity of peril. Women fell down in hysterics, children too young to appreciate the position, scrambled in the darkness after their parents, and cried most frantically. Here and there, however, could be found some, sublimely forgetful of self, trying to sustain and encourage. Sounds of remembered prayer or scripture came now and then, barely distinguishable among the noise of mingled motion, calling, cursing and crying. The actresses were completely helpless. Their despondency, their fright, their agony were terrible. They wrung their hands, called on each other for the assistance and information which all were too scared and too ignorant to give. English prayers, German petitions, French exclamations intermingled in a heterogeneous vocal variety! Some counted their beads, some their money. To increase the horror quite a number downed their conception of the scenes in liquor, and drunken men and women, too, sang uproariously, and at times lewdly, through the fearful surroundings. At 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning, the dreadful news came: "A leak is sprung; there is great water in the hold." So great had been the former fright that this worst confirmation of the extremest fears did not seem to add to the terror, but was received at first with a sort of blank dismay that had no words. About a quarter before four in the morning, while the Evening Star was in the surging trough, and swept by a tremendous cross-sea, an appalling crash was heard above, a cry of rage, the trampling of men upon men, gave terrible evidence that a new horror had happened. It appeared that the main smoke-stack had been carried away. The water rushed now in gigantic volumes across the deck and from end to end. The fires in the large engine-room were put out. The firemen were sent rushing on deck to escape, for a brief while, the deluge that hungered to swallow them up. The donkey-engines were then the sole dependence to keep the swinging, leaking, helpless mass in motion. The sea had meanwhile swept into splinters the wheel-houses, leaving only the "A" braces and gunwales. At 4:15 A. M., the last hope of keeping the vessel under control was given up. The water at this point rushed in and extinguished the fires in the donkey-engine rooms, and wheelless, rudderless, mastless, engineless, fireless, the Evening Star lay torn and seamed in the tremendous hurricane, with more than three hundred souls on board looking death in the eye. At five o'clock the captain told the passengers all that could be done had been done, and all hands must to the pumps. Heretofore the steam from the donkey-engines had been running the pumps vigorously but ineffectually. Now hands must work to prolong the last and least chance of life. At it they went with a will, nerved by the energy of despair. Then all hands not at the pumps went to bailing out. So soon as something to do was presented a better spirit was obtained. Sex vied with sex in labor. Women, men and children, worked with a strength which was the more sad in the thought that certain death made all labor useless. That they did not know. While there was something to do, or life to work for, there was hope. The noble conduct of all parties is elsewhere detailed. That of the women whose antecedents would have suggested otherwise, but over whose fate the noble close of their life will cause regret and sorrow to be cast, not second to what are showered upon others better behaved or better circumstanced than they, was herein in the extreme, and the charity that is kind will cover the multitude of their remembered faults in the recall of their courage, their self-sacrifice, and their martyrdom of exertion. During this ineffectual attempt to bail out, the remorseless waves were sweeping scores into eternity, as their black and angry volume spread over the decks in search of victims. Their deaths but briefly anticipated the ruin that awaited nearly all. What remains can be but briefly told. Those that survive remember few details from this point. The lowering of the boats, which were almost all at once successively engulphed by the madness of the waves, and which proved, instead of safety, the coffins, can better be imagined—and to the horror that surrounds the details, words only add weakness. Stalwart men, gentle women, little children, went up to God in an instant's time. Trusting for safety to the boats, they found them washed from beneath before their feet touched them, or else sinking into eternal night and waters as soon as they had received their freight of living corpses. The horrible agony of those that from the ship beheld the occasional safe passage off of the few that were saved, and the even worse panic of those in the boats, as wave after wave drank out the occupants into the jaws of the seething hell of waters around. This finds better photograph in our instinctive horror than the pen can sketch. But the final scene. It was half-past six. The last boat had left or been swamped. Hundreds yet remained behind. The vessel was without a crew or master. She was gathering momently the waters that were to hurl her to the bottom. An angrier rush of the mountainous billows, a more convulsive shudder of the torn and parting vessel, then a spin, a lurch, a sensation of extreme suction, and the ship is drawn under; those left on board have gone from agony to eternity; the waves lick their furious lips over the space in which the Evening Star had battled so long and so terribly for life; and the wreck completed becomes, from being an awful tragedy of wind and wave against life, but a soul-rending memory and the grief of ten thousand hearts.

There are only 23 persons saved. Besides the Purser's boat which arrived at Savannah with 10 persons, a boat containing the Third Mate and five others, with two dead bodies, has arrived at Fernandina, Florida. The schooner Morning Star picked up one of the life boats containing James W. Lyon, Pilot; John Bordey, cook; A. Sanza, E. A. VanSickles, Minnie Taylor and Molly Wilson, passengers.

The Third Mate's boat arrived at Fernandina, Florida, on Sunday morning, October 7, with six persons and two dead bodies. The names of the survivors are: Thomas Fitzpatrick, First Mate; John Dempsey, seaman; John Campbell, seaman; Jas. Howe, seaman; Chancellor Mason, Steerage Steward; Frank Gerrard, passenger.

The saved in Purser's boat are: Robert Finger, Chief Engineer; John Lang, water tender; Fred. Schafer, coal-passer; George Smith, seaman; John Powers, seaman; Dennis Gannon, waiter; Edward Larner, passenger, H. H. Harris, passenger.

The Tribune says:

"The statements made by the officers of the Evening Star are not satisfactory. They do not directly inform us of the cause of her loss, and, indeed, if we accept all the compliments to her strength and good management, there would be no cause whatever.

"The engines of the Evening Star were not built for her, and were no doubt excellent; but the question is not in regard to their excellence as machinery, but their fitness for an ocean vessel. We have already declared our belief that the upright engines were the original cause of the ship's foundering, but there is additional evidence itself to show that the vessel itself was poorly constructed. The Purser, E. S. Allen, says that the engines worked admirably up to 5 A. M. Wednesday, October 3, about an hour before the ship went down, yet at the same time admits that at 2 o'clock, or four hours previous, the steamer was lying in the trough of the sea. For all practical purposes, we should judge from this, the engine might as well have been working on shore. The Purser and Chief Engineer have nothing to say of any disaster to the steamer until about four hours before she foundered; and we should infer from their statements that the Evening Star was in excellent order till within from four to ten hours of sinking, and that in that period her bulwarks were driven in, her paddle box and hurricane deck swept away, her rudder chains broken, her seams opened, her engine room flooded, her donkey engine broken, and the ship left a rolling log in the trough of the sea. But, if we look at the statements of two of the passengers saved, the trouble seems to have begun earlier. At 11 A. M. on the 2d, according to Mr. Harris, the engine room was flooded, and all hands called upon to bail out the water; at the same time a leak was discovered, and the bulwarks stove in on the starboard quarter; at 12 the rudder chains were broken, and the vessel became totally unmanageable, and at one o'clock a hole was cut in the deck to throw out the freight and get at the leak. The storm began, according to the statement of the Purser, on the evening of the 2d; on the morning of the 2d, according to Mr. Harris, the cabin and the engine-room were filled with water. Mr. Allen, Purser, says that the freight was removed in order to bail out the water, which had been taken in by the breaches of the sea over the deck. Mr. Harris declares that this was done to get at the leak. The ship had behaved so well during the whole night, says the Purser, that up to about an hour before she sunk he did not think the danger imminent. Mr. Harris says that all night long she lay at the mercy of the waves. At 2 o'clock, four hours before she foundered, all work was abandoned, and the ship given up for lost.

"These discrepancies we have noted by a brief comparison of the statements made, and there are others equally apparent. We do not think the steamer was of exceptional weakness; on the contrary, we fear there are many others equally unfit to contend with the furious storms which prevail at this season on our coast. The eulogies which she has received are not justified by the facts which accompany them, and the public will not be satisfied with the assurance that no vessel could have done better. Over 200 lives were lost in the Evening Star, but two women were saved, and of the dozen or so survivors the large proportion were of the crew. There is enough in all this to make further investigation imperative."

THE SECOND MATE SAVED—HORRIBLE SUFFERINGS OF THE LADIES.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 15.—A private letter from Mayport Mills, Fla., says that Gouldsby, the second mate of the Evening Star, had arrived there, having left the steamer with a boat-load of ladies. All but two were lost before getting near shore. In landing, the latter were lost—one named Annie, from Rhode Island, and the other Rosa Howard, of New York. Both became insane from want and starvation. The bodies were washed ashore. That of the latter was nearly devoured by sharks. The mate is barely alive.

STATEMENT OF ONE OF THE CREW—THRILLING NARRATIVE OF THE SUFFERINGS ENDURED BY THE SURVIVORS—HEROIC CONDUCT OF LADY PASSENGERS.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 8.—The following account, taken from the lips of one of the crew of the ill-fated steamship Evening Star, gives further particulars of the appalling catastrophe:

He says: I had run on that steamer several months once before; the last time I shipped was about two months ago, and we have made two trips since; had always regarded her as a strong boat, but about four months ago she run on a reef off the Florida coast, and broke her back, since then I believe she has not been strong, although she was supposed to have been thoroughly repaired immediately afterward.

We left New York Monday morning, with pleasant weather and a prospect of making a quick trip. The next day, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, it blew so hard that we took in sail, and I noticed, as the sea rose, she worked and strained badly, and I thought of the heavy engine amidships and the immense freight on board, but having been at sea thirteen years, and feeling so well acquainted with her, felt no uneasiness, though the wind soon blew a perfect hurricane, a man being scarcely able to stand on deck for it.

She soon began to leak, and the water came in from all directions. The pumps were set at work, but gave out, and all hands, passengers and crew, went to work with buckets to try to keep down the water till daylight. The gale increased, and the paddles and wheelhouse were carried away during the night. I was sent below to keep the water from coming in at the "dead lights," and then stuffed with bedding, ladies' dresses, and everything else we could lay hands on, but every sea that come would turn the ship on her side, and the water would pour in to such an extent that it seemed useless to try to do more.

Soon after, we were all passing water from the hold in buckets, and several ladies were assisting near me in the line, when the ship gave a terrible lurch, and I thought they would be frightened; but they only asked quietly if we thought the danger was great, to which we of course answered in the negative.

Those women worked bravely, nobly. A few of the German women gave up in despair; but the American ladies worked on earnestly and bravely, without faltering, till 5 o'clock in the morning, when the Captain came down, and told us that the vessel must go down.

They had more pluck than many of the men had. When the Captain informed all hands that the ship could not hold together long, she was a perfect wreck, and floated in the trough of the sea, settling deeper every minute. I was one who went below at this time to wake up all who were in their state rooms. Several were very sick and did not leave their rooms, going down with the ship. Going on deck soon after, I found everybody gathering there, and the wind blew so hard that no human voice could be heard five yards. I assisted in cutting away four boats—we had ten life-boats—the others were also cut adrift. We could not launch them in that sea. Suddenly the ship gave a lurch, and before we knew what had happened, we were under water. It was so sudden, I couldn't realize it.

When I came to the surface, the water was covered with driftwood, and I managed to get hold of a plank, which sustained me a short time, and by the aid of the little daylight we had, the forms of several of the passengers and crew could be seen clinging to the planks, timbers, boats upside down and anything else which assisted in sustaining them above water.

After being capsized several times, and being badly bruised by the timber floating about, I at last got into the Captain's boat, which was supporting eighteen or twenty persons then.

A young lady was clinging to her on one side —the only woman I saw alive then, out of eighty or ninety aboard. The boat being full of water, was turned over and over several times by the heavy seas, and we all lost our hold on her, but all but one or two regained it. The third time the boat was overturned the young lady lost her hold and sunk by my side, almost near enough for me to touch her with my hand, but I could render her no assistance.

Captain Knapp soon after lost hold, when we were capsized and he went down so near to me that I could have touched him. During the twenty-four hours after the sinking of the ship, our boat capsized no less than nine times, the wind blowing a gale all the time.

We finally managed to get into her, though nearly full of water, and, by means of an old felt hat, bailed out some of the water. But there we were, fourteen of us, one hundred miles from land, without oars, compass, chart, food or drink, sitting in an open boat full of water, every sea breaking over us and threatening to capsize us again. Hitherto we had been floating at the mercy of the waves, but now a man was discovered who had been floating on a part of the deck and had managed to get an oar which had drifted near him.

We took him in, and with the oar were enabled to keep our boat a little before the wind, which had now begun to die away. Myself and another man, were the only ones who had strength remaining sufficient to attempt to steer her at all, and we were pretty well used up.

For four days and nights we were in that open boat, and, though the gale subsided on the second day, a "nasty sea" rendered our position anything but agreeable, particularly when the sun appeared, and its burning rays beat on our bare heads. Our clothing soon dried, and we began to feel stiff, sore, faint, hungry and entirely exhausted. On the third day, two of those in the boat became delirious, and leaping overboard sank from our sight. Two others died soon after, and their bodies were brought in with us. We guided our course by the stars, and thought we might possibly reach the coast of Florida. Day before yesterday we fell in with a Norwegian barque, and were taken aboard and very kindly treated.

She was bound to England, and as we shortly afterward fell in with a vessel bound to Savannah, we were put on board and arrived there today. I don't think the steamer was lost through any lack in seamanship; everything that could be done was done to save her. I have been to sea thirteen years, and never was out in such a storm. It is a miracle that any of us escaped.

MR. JOHNSON'S PERSONAL OFFENCE.—Jefferson Davis says that he once gave personal offence to Mr. Johnson, by saying in a debate in the Senate, in reply to some remarks of the latter in disparagement of West Point officers, "Who would select a tailor to shoe a horse, or a black-smith to make a coat?" Mr. Johnson took umbrage at this as a personal remark. To suppose that this was the origin of the quarrel between him and Davis, and his fellow-aristocrats, and the prime motive of his hostility to the rebellion which was gotten up in their interest, would furnish a more plausible explanation than has yet been offered of the inconsistencies which his course has exhibited.

THE WIFE AHEAD.—While unseen by each other at a Richmond auction room, husband and wife ran up an article from five to thirteen dollars. The wife won.

Political Items.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—Hon. Geo. W. Julian, of the Fifth District, is a candidate for United States Senator.

H. W. Harrington, the defeated Copperhead candidate for Congress in the Third District, has gone to Washington to receive the appointment of Collector of that district, now held by Col. Simeon Stansifer, a gallant soldier.

General Ira C. Grover, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Fourth District of Indiana, announced his intention to contest the return of his competitor, W. S. Holman. General Grover declares that he has abundant evidence that Holman was elected by illegal votes.

OMAHA, Nebraska, Oct. 16.—The official returns from the Territory are nearly complete, and show a Republican majority of between 600 and 700. The Legislature is two-thirds Republican.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—An evening Administration paper has a significant article on the Constitutional amendment, citing to Southern newspapers which have lately come out in favor of its adoption, saying that there seems to be a growing disposition on the part of the people of the South to accept the Constitutional amendment, and then do away with the pretext afforded to the Radicals for hostile legislation toward them, on the ground of their alleged impracticability. The article concludes by saying: "Within a brief time the Richmond, and in fact nearly all the Southern journals, have exhibited a very perceptible change of tone. Prominent Southerners who have arrived here recently confirm the opinion that the South is preparing to accept the amendment as the best course which the success of the Republicans in the recent elections has left open to them."

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Ex-Governor Holden, of North Carolina, addressed the Colored Educational Convention, at Raleigh, North Carolina, on the 6th inst. Speaking of the duties and relations of the black and white races at the South, he said the true interest of the colored race was to cultivate the friendship of the whites, and the whites would find their true interests in doing justice to the black and in cultivating their friendship. The colored people were entitled to all their civil rights, and they would have them; the common Government would see to that if necessary, but he did not believe that such a necessity would arise; he hoped it would not.

South Carolina had just passed a law doing full justice to the colored people in this respect. No one thought of or proposed social equality between the two races; society would always take care of itself. He urged the colored people to keep out of politics. It was a weariness to the flesh among the white people. They had not yet demonstrated their capacity of self-government, and would not until the Union was restored and our liberties consolidated on the everlasting rock of truth and justice.

The Herald's Washington special says that the rumor that the President had written to Southern Governors, advising them to convene their Legislatures and recommended the adoption of the Constitutional amendment, is undoubtedly incorrect, as no positive indications have yet been exhibited tending to show that the President will swerve from his purpose not to be a party to the granting of universal negro suffrage in any shape.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD AND ITS PROGRESS.—The Virginia City Enterprise of Nov. 7th, says:

The Union Pacific railroad has completed their surveys to the eastern boundary of California. Yesterday we were called upon by Capt. T. H. Bates, Division Engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad, who gave us some valuable facts. He has just completed a survey through Reed's Pass in the Humboldt mountains, to the State line of California. The distance between the two points is 386 miles. The survey was completed in 554 working days, making an average of about 7 miles a day, while the largest day's work was 21 miles. This survey proceeds from Reed's Pass down the Humboldt river, to the sink of the Humboldt; thence crossing the Truckee desert to the Great Bend of the Truckee river; thence following up the Truckee river to the boundary line of the States of Nevada and California, at a point near Crystal Peak.

Capt. Bates furnishes us with various interesting items of his survey, among which we may mention that the height of Reed's Pass is 5,550 feet above the water; that there is very little heavy work between Reed's Pass and the California line, the average grade being only 10 feet to the mile, and the road can be so constructed that the maximum grade will not be over 20 feet to the mile. The sink of the Humboldt is 3,985 feet above tide water, the Great Bend of the Truckee 4,144 feet, and the terminus of the survey at the California line, 5,168 feet. This line of survey crosses the head of Reese river, and according to Capt. Bates' recollection, about 90 miles distant from Austin. It passes near Dun Glen in Humboldt county, and also near Hunter's Crossing on the Truckee, which is the supposed nearest point to Virginia.

Capt. Bates, who has conducted this survey with unparalleled velocity, will remain in this city for a few days to recruit his corps of assistants, when they will proceed to Salt Lake, at which point the Captain will proceed to survey a route from the City of the Saints to Columbia river in Oregon, on which a railroad will be constructed connecting Portland with the Union Pacific Railroad, and in which work it is believed the stockholders of the latter corporation are interested.

The New York Nation a short time before the elections, made the following predictions in regard to the future action of the Southern States on the Constitutional amendment: "We shall not have to wait long to see:

Let it be once demonstrated by the elections that Mr. Johnson's promises and advices are worthless, that he and his supporters are powerless, that behind the Congressional majority there stands the Northern people firm and unshaken, and as determined to reap the fruits of the war as it was two years ago to carry the war on, and, our word for it, we shall have peace, and permanent peace, in the spring. The South will accept the Constitutional amendment, in spite of its present threats, just as placidly and gracefully as it gave up the intention, so long entertained, of "dying in the last ditch," and waging guerrilla warfare "down the ages." There is nothing in the amendment intrinsically humiliating or unjust. Even Mr. Beecher acknowledges that, and, therefore, it will be swallowed without a qualm. The Southern representatives will take their seats next winter as good-humoredly as if nothing had happened, and Mr. Johnson be left no more exciting duty than giving a revised edition of his old speeches, with annotations by Mr. Thurlow Weed, and an appendix by Montgomery Blair, clearing up the more doubtful points in the President's metaphysics and political economy.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.—The New York Tribune of October 6th, contained the following statement:

"For several days after the intelligence was received in South Carolina of the thundering majority with which Maine sustained Congress against the warfare of the President, the Charleston News and the Mercury were significantly silent. When comment came on the great political fact, see the vindication of the wisdom of the people's policy of reconstruction, as declared by their representatives in Congress, each of those papers published leading editorials, intimating that the political situation would "compel" the President and the South to accept the Constitutional Amendment as the "final adjustment" of the difficulties of reconstruction."

The Tribune also says that telegrams like the following, from the States lately in rebellion, had become frequent in the last four weeks:

"Prominent Southerners just from the North report that the popular sentiment is entirely with Congress, and this creates much alarm among the politicians. The Picayune has changed its editor, and it is understood that it will in the future advocate the immediate adoption of the Constitutional Amendment. The Bee also gives the Amendment a tacit support."

CRUEL AND SAD.—A letter, describing scenes on the Western prairies, says:

To-day passed a lame ox, turned adrift to shift for itself by some passing train. A floating bit of wood in mid-ocean could hardly look more hopelessly lost. Not far from the poor beast I discovered a large white wolf—frightened at our approach, sneaking off through the grass. The rascal will be back soon, with a comrade or two, and then woe betide the poor ox. They'll follow and harass him for a time, to ascertain his speed and strength, and then gradually getting bolder with his heaviness, some will rush upon him in front, while others will ham-string him from behind, and then there is a tearing of flesh, a snapping of wolfish jaws and a licking of bloody lips.

THE EVENING STAR CALAMITY.—A dispatch dated at Savannah, October 15th, says:

A private letter from Mayport Mills (Fla.) says that Gouldsby, the second mate of the Evening Star, has arrived there, having left the steamer with a boat load of ladies. All but two were lost before getting near shore. In landing, the latter were lost—one named Annie, from Rhode Island, and the other Rosa Howard, of New York. Both became insane from want and starvation. The bodies were washed ashore. That of the latter was nearly devoured by sharks. The mate is barely alive.

ANATHEMATIZATION.—Gen. Butler, having discussed the justice of hanging Robert E. Lee for his share in the Andersonville crime, the Mobile Tribune thus anathematizes:

"Hang Robert E. Lee! It is highly just that such a sentiment of the devil should be uttered by so appropriate a medium as Beast Butler. It would have burned to a cinder, during utterance, any other than Butlerian lips. It required cheeks of fourfold brass to give passage, without bursting asunder, to such a sentiment. A simple thief would have failed in the attempt to give it voice; a common murderer would not have undertaken it; an ordinary coward would have been ashamed of it; a moderate liar would have been ashamed of the attempt. It required a perfect combination of the whole—liar, coward, thief and murderer, in the foul person of the Massachusetts hero, to complete the incarnate fiend capable of standing up in full assembly and coolly making the proposition to hang Gen. Robert E. Lee!"

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—When a lady would compose her mouth to a bland and serene character, she should, just before entering the room, say "bosom," and keep the expression into which the mouth subsides until the desired effect upon the company is evident. If, on the other hand, she wishes to assume a distinguished and somewhat noble bearing, not suggestive of sweetness, she should say "brush," the result of which is infallible. If she would make her mouth look small and needing enlarging, she must say "cabbage." If she wishes to look mournful, she must say "kerchunk." If resigned, she must forcibly ejaculate "scat." Ladies, when having their photographs taken, may observe these rules with some advantage.

By an act of Congress of May 5, 1866, the limit of Arizona was reduced northwest of the Rio Grande—the point between it and the California boundary, 7,823,926 square acres, being ceded to Nevada. Arizona has 72,906,301 square acres, Nevada, including the Arizona encroachments on the south, and gaining one degree on the east from Utah, has 71,751,741 acres.

SOMETHING NEW!
THE NEW LIGHT!
DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT, IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided. It is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas burner for less than ½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or [illegible] absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of [illegible] or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering any of these horrible life-destroying maladies. [illegible] they are cared for and cured before it be too late; [illegible] them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing that [illegible] in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing on the public by using the names of eminent physicians in Europe and other places. Be therefore careful, [illegible] strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse or solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is [illegible] by the youth of both sexes to an alarming extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the [illegible] of morbid symptoms, unless combated by [illegible] ical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, [illegible] the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, about the loins, weakness of the limbs, [illegible] blunted intellect, loss of confidence, [illegible] approaching strangers, a dislike to form new [illegible] a disposition to shun society, loss of [illegible] flushes, pimples and various eruptions about [illegible] furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, [illegible] sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. [illegible] not obtained, should apply immediately, [illegible] or by letter, and have a cure effected by his [illegible] antifluid mode of treating this disease, which [illegible] effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. [illegible] Hundred Dollars to any person who will [illegible] rify to him that he was cured of this [illegible] of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will [illegible] patient a written instrument, binding him [illegible] radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating [illegible] toms, length of time the disease has continued, [illegible] medicines promptly forwarded, free from [illegible] curiosity, to any part of the country, with full directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in a letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
